

What's next for ACPHARM

Watch out for new products and services in the fields of:

Sterile compounding

In 2015 the compounding industry was altered by regulation changes set down by the Pharmacy Board of Australia and the TGA. ACPHARM is ready and willing to adopt these changes. This is something we have been working toward since commencing operations way back in 2003. We are happy to announce that our processes and standards at ACPHARM will allow us to trade right through these proposed changes.

Latest in dose delivery forms

ACPHARM is currently researching the use of innovative preparations to deliver our active compounds via a number of different methods. From high-level sublingual delivery to less painful, more convenient injection devices, ACPHARM is living up to its standard of constant innovation to consistently improve safety and efficacy of compounded products.

Australian Custom Pharmaceuticals (ACPHARM) started in 2003 as a small “compounding-only” pharmacy – one of the first in Australia.

Our plan was to become Australia’s largest provider of compounded pharmaceuticals. In 2015, it’s safe to say we have achieved that goal.

Having produced over 30 million doses of individualised medicine in 12 years, ACPHARM has developed into the pharmacy that you know today – big pharmacy pricing, small pharmacy service and an innovation & patient safety profile that is unrivalled in Australia.

And that was just the first 12 years.

ACPHARM EDS

The ACPHARM Efficient Dispensing System (EDS) has become the envy of compounders the world over. Our frequent national and international visitors are in awe of the patient-centric programs we have developed to run our pharmacy – a barcode driven system, warehouse to patient, that is exclusive to ACPHARM.

Removing human error

ACPHARM EDS utilises advanced weighing protocols, bluetooth connectivity technology and unique touch-screen interfaces. This ensures that your compounded products are of the highest quality, maximising the safety of products through the removal of human error.

Efficient tracking from order to delivery

Our web based system allows our patients to track their compounded product from time of order right through to the tracking and delivery details at a moment’s notice.

Better recall system than big pharma

Our system ensures that products are identified by the specific batches of raw materials used in their manufacture. As each script is individualised, in the unlikely event of a product recall, we can determine who is affected and make contact with the push of a button.

The multiple pharmacist-checks within our system ensure that our team of highly trained specialists are an integral part of dispensing your personalised medicine. If you require further counselling about your medicine, our team pharmacists are available to talk with you on 1300 853 620.

All of these and many more factors combine to become what we can proudly call Compounding with Confidence®.
